

Custom fiber optic patch cord manufacturer

AI Overview

Custom-made fiber optic patch cords are available from specialized manufacturers offering tailored lengths, connectors, fiber types, and jacket materials to meet diverse industrial, telecom, and data center requirements.

Overview of Custom Fiber Optic Patch Cords A fiber optic patch cord is an optical fiber cable terminated with connectors at both ends, enabling quick and reliable connections in networks, data centers, and telecommunication systems. Custom-made cords allow you to specify fiber type (singlemode or multimode), connector type (LC, SC, FC, MPO/MTP), cable length, jacket material, and even OEM labeling to suit specific applications.

Key Components

- Core: Glass or plastic center through which light propagates; singlemode cores are smaller for long-distance, high-bandwidth transmission, while multimode cores allow multiple light modes for shorter distances.
- Cladding: Surrounds the core to prevent light leakage.
- Coating/Buffer: Protects the core and cladding.
- Strength Member: Materials like Kevlar reinforce the cable against stress.
- Jacket: Outer layer providing protection and color coding for fiber type.

Customization Options

Manufacturers offer extensive customization, including:

- Connector Types: LC, SC, FC, ST, MU, MPO/MTP, with UPC or APC polishing.
- Fiber Types: Singlemode (OS2, photosensitive, ultra-high NA) and multimode (OM3, OM4) fibers.
- Cable Lengths: Non-standard lengths from 1 meter up to 20 meters or more.
- Jacket Materials: Standard PVC, plenum-rated, riser-rated, or armored steel interlocked jackets for harsh environments.
- High-Density Configurations: MTP/MPO fan-out assemblies and multi-fiber trunk cables for data centers.
- OEM Services: Custom colors, labeling, packaging, and branding.
- Quality and Standards: Reliable manufacturers adhere to international standards and certifications to ensure performance and safety: TIA/EIA-568: Comme...
