

High-precision CIF price for Finnish exported photovoltaic combiner boxes

AI Overview

Exact CIF prices for Finnish-exported photovoltaic combiner boxes are not publicly listed, but they can be estimated using European solar component indices, export costs, and insurance rates.

Estimating CIF Prices CIF (Cost, Insurance, and Freight) pricing includes the manufacturer's price, shipping costs, and insurance to the destination port. For Finnish photovoltaic combiner boxes:

- Base Price: European wholesale prices for solar components, including combiner boxes, typically range from €50 to €150 per unit, depending on specifications, amperage rating, and IP protection class. While pvXchange provides detailed solar module price indices, combiner boxes are usually priced proportionally to module capacity and quality standards (pvXchange, 2026).
- Shipping Costs: For exports from Finland to major European ports, sea freight for small electrical components is generally €0.50–€2 per kg, while air freight can be higher, around €5–€10 per kg, depending on urgency and volume.
- Insurance: Standard marine cargo insurance typically adds 0.3–0.5% of the shipment value to the CIF price.

Factors Affecting Price

- Component Specifications: Higher-rated combiner boxes (e.g., 1000V DC, IP65) command higher prices.
- Order Volume: Bulk orders reduce per-unit shipping and insurance costs.
- Market Trends: European solar component prices fluctuate with raw material costs, demand, and supply chain conditions. For example, pvXchange reports that solar module prices in April 2026 remained relatively stable, reflecting similar trends for associated components like combiner boxes (pvXchange, 2026).
- Currency and Purchasing Power: Export pricing may be adjusted using purchasing power parity or exchange rates, as reported by Statistics Finland for international price comparisons (Statistics Finland, 2026).
