

How much does a 5-meter fiber optic patch cable cost per meter

AI Overview

5-meter fibre optic patch cables in Australia typically range from AUD 20 to AUD 50, depending on fibre type and connector specifications. Price Examples BIG W offers a 5M SC-SC OM4 multimode fibre optic patch cable for around AUD 29.95. This cable is backward compatible with OM3, uses LSZH (Low Smoke Zero Halogen) material, and is suitable for high-speed Ethernet connections from 10Mbit/s to 10Gbit/s. FS Australia and 4Cabling provide a wide range of fibre patch cables, including singlemode (OS1/OS2) and multimode (OM1, OM3, OM4) options. Prices for 5-meter cables vary depending on the fibre grade, connector type (LC, SC, ST), and testing certification, generally falling between AUD 20 and AUD 50. Factors Affecting Price Fibre Type: Singlemode cables are usually more expensive than multimode due to higher performance over long distances. Connector Type: SC, LC, ST, and MTRJ connectors have different manufacturing costs; LC connectors are common for high-density applications. Cable Material: LSZH cables are safer for indoor use and may cost slightly more than standard PVC cables. Testing and Certification: Factory-tested cables with individual test reports ensure reliability and may increase the price. Recommendations For short-distance office or home networking, a 5-meter OM4 multimode SC-SC patch cable is cost-effective and sufficient. For long-distance or high-performance networks, consider singlemode OS2 cables to ensure minimal signal loss. Always check for ISO/IEC, TIA/EIA, and Telcordia compliance to guarantee quality and compatibility. By considering these factors, you can select a 5-meter fibre optic patch cable that balances performance, safety, and cost for your network setup.
