

Offshore Price Fiber Optic Distribution Box 6 Cores

AI Overview

The offshore price of a 6-core fiber optic distribution box varies widely depending on manufacturer, IP rating, and additional features, typically ranging from $30 to $100 per unit for standard models.

Product Overview A 6-core fiber optic distribution box (FDB) is a compact enclosure designed for managing and protecting optical fibers in telecom and FTTx networks. These boxes are suitable for direct connection, branching, and continuous fiber connections, and can accommodate fusion or mechanical splices. Many models include splice cassettes, cable management systems, and optional PLC splitters for network flexibility.

Key Features Affecting Price

- Protection Rating: Outdoor and offshore models often have IP55 to IP68 ratings, providing dustproof and waterproof protection against harsh environments.
- Material: High-impact ABS+PC or similar durable plastics ensure mechanical protection and long-term reliability.
- Installation Options: Boxes can be mounted on walls, poles, or inside cabinets, which may influence cost depending on mounting hardware and design.
- Additional Components: Some boxes allow splitter installation (e.g., 1x4 PLC splitters) and have multiple cable entry ports, which can increase the price.

Typical Price Range While exact offshore pricing depends on supplier, order quantity, shipping, and local taxes, standard 6-core FDBs generally fall in the $30-$100 range per unit. Premium models with IP68 sealing, integrated splitters, or reinforced enclosures may cost more. Bulk orders for offshore deployment often reduce the per-unit cost.

Recommendations for Offshore Procurement Confirm the IP rating meets offshore environmental conditions (saltwater, humidity, UV exposure). Verify compatibility with existing fiber network components (connectors, splitters, and cable types). Request wholesale or bulk quotes from manufacturers like ME Fiber, OTRANS...
